

Methods More Modern

Are employed in these days to cure gout and rheumatism. No longer is it necessary to counteract the poisons that cause these troubles by noxious drugs. Londonderry Lithia Water is recommended by physicians who know. The salts which it contains accomplish the desired result. Londonderry Lithia also prevents as well as cures. That it is delicious is testified to by all who have ever tasted it. It is a wholesome, sparkling beverage that is served by the best hotels, clubs and families of our land where modern methods are indorsed. G. G. Cornwell & Sons and Jno. H. WALK ON VELVET.
PEOPLE with tender feet can now find relief and "Walk on Velvet."

The improved "Ventilated" Shoe is the greatest invention ever made for the health and comfort of the feet. In all leather—men's and women's.

What a Washington merchant says:
GENTLEMEN: For years I have suffered from tender, burning feet, but since I have been wearing your "Ventilated" Shoes, I can walk all day with ease and comfort. The ventilation of the shoe keeps my feet dry and healthy, while the elastic air cushion is extremely comfortable either walking or standing.
Yours truly,

MEMORIAL EXERCISES

The Program Observed at Lafayette Square Opera House.

ADDRESSES BY PROMINENT ORATORS

Father of His Country as Statesman and Citizen.

MUSIC AND DECORATIONS

Exercises commemorating the death of George Washington were held at the Lafayette Square Opera House last evening under the auspices of the George Washington Memorial Association. A representative local audience filled the building, which was handsomely and appropriately decorated, the national colors being most tastefully and largely used. Raised seats had been erected on the stage, and they were occupied by the members of the Washington Choral Society. Above them were hung the stars and stripes in the form of electric lights, a beautiful waving effect being given it when the music was rendered by the Fourth Artillery Band, Prof. Anible Buglione, leader, at the close of the exercises. Seated also upon the stage were a number of prominent officials and citizens, and with them the speakers of the evening and several of the local clergymen.

After the band had rendered Chopin's "Funeral March" and the "Rock" march, Mrs. Ellen H. Richardson, the president of the association, called the assembly to order and invited Bishop Satterlee to deliver an invocation, who responded. The Choral Society, led by Prof. Josef Kaspar, sang "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne," after which Mrs. Richardson introduced Mr. John A. Kasson as the presiding officer of the evening.

An Unpublished Letter.
Mr. Kasson first read from an unpublished letter of Washington of September 22, 1790, in which he said, after referring to the death of his brother, "When the summons comes, I shall obey with full grace."

Mr. Kasson also read from a letter written by Washington's secretary, in which reference was made to the resignation and bravery with which Washington faced death. Well might a man of the Washington met death with composure, remarked Mr. Kasson, for there was nothing in his life which could make his end a thing of terror. His life and motives were the standest monuments man could have, and no cloud-piercing marble shaft was necessary, therefore, to commemorate his work.

Churchman's Standpoint.
Bishop Satterlee was presented to the audience by Mr. Kasson and spoke of Washington from a churchman's standpoint. The bishop remarked that the words spoken of Washington half a century or more ago to the effect that "He was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen," are as true today as they were the day they were first uttered. He was an intense love of liberty. He had faith in truth, in right and in liberty, all of which made him not only the first President of the country, but also the first citizen of the world.

Washington's Will.
Mr. A. A. Ade, assistant secretary of state, was also unable to attend, and at Mr. Kasson's request, Prof. W. J. McGee took Mr. Ade's place on the program, and read several extracts from Washington's will. Mr. Kasson read a letter of regret from Mr. Wilson, president of Washington and Lee University, in which Mr. Wilson referred to benefits derived by the university from bequests to it contained in Washington's will.

Dr. P. B. Barringer, president of the University of Virginia, was next introduced, saying that while but very few people at the close of the revolution were acquainted with Washington or were able to recognize his features, they knew his character. He knew him as the ideal man and soldier, and while his features may in time be forgotten, Washington, as the ideal man, never will.

Framer of Constitution.
Dr. J. L. M. Curry, former United States minister to Spain, the next speaker, spoke of Washington as the framer of the Constitution. Washington, he explained, early pleaded for a constitution which would cure the defects of the articles of confederation, and by acclaim the constitutional convention chose him as its presiding officer. His labors in connection with the Constitution did not cease with the performance of the functions of such an officer, but were continued with sleepless wisdom. The Constitution adopted by the convention, Washington's example and influence secured its ratification, and it stands today, and will forever, his grandest monument.

The "Hallelujah Chorus" was sung by the Choral Society, after which Dr. Chas. W. Dabney, president of the University of Tennessee, was introduced, speaking of the sublimity of Washington's character.

He declared that it has taken a century to grow as it has grown to realize what he was. He was the first American—the first man to conceive and plan a free government and a world power. Had his idea of a national universal government been executed, had men of such divergent views as Hamilton and Webster, Tompkins, Jefferson Davis and Seward attended it, it is more than probable that the civil war would never have been fought. He was the first great expansionist, and early sought to extend the government over the western country and bind all its peoples together. From first to last he desired and worked that America should become a great nation.

As an Explorer.
Prof. Walcott of the geological survey spoke of Washington as an explorer and surveyor, and Dr. Chas. C. Swisher of Columbia University, after referring to Washington's tolerance in religious matters and the intimacy between him and Archbishop Carroll, presented a letter from Cardinal Gibbons, saying: "In view of the purely non-sectarian character of the George Washington Memorial Association, this letter had a singular grace and fitness, not only in its timing upon the present, but upon the past."

Prof. Swisher then read the letter.

The letter of his Washington's glory," wrote Cardinal Gibbons, "has not been dimmed by time. Years will pass on and yet his memory will be put in the field, but neither years nor future victories will diminish our admiration for the general who, by almost superhuman effort, held together the warring states of the country, and by his forces and made it the nucleus of an army which, afterward, in conjunction with the French—our best friends—compelled the surrender of Cornwallis. No man can believe that the wisdom of his counsel is overshadowed by more modern policies of government."

The exercises were then concluded by the rendition of the national anthem by the band.

S. R. Crockett's New Novel.
"The Isle of the Winds" is the most thrilling story that S. R. Crockett, author of "The Stickit Minister," "The Black Douglas," etc., has yet produced. It is essentially a story of adventure, full of pirates, gypsies, good men and villains, daring expeditions and deeds of bravery, and from first to last the action is breathless and presented with all the author's accustomed fire and force. "The Isle of the Winds" will appear as a people's favorite, and a year's subscription would be a most appropriate Christmas gift for some out-of-town friend who is fond of good reading.

Douglas's Memorial Association.
Mr. Allen of Maine has introduced a bill in the House to incorporate the Frederick Douglass Memorial Association of the District of Columbia. It is similar to the like measure which was pending in the last Congress.

1,846 ladies' high-grade waists== a maker's entire stock==at nearly 1/2 price.

We have just consummated one of the most important purchases of our entire career—coming into possession of immense quantities of Ladies' Finest Grade Waists at about half the usual cost. They are the celebrated "Mortimer" Waists—the standard of value excellence. Their maker was anxious to clear up his work rooms before the holidays—rightfully believing that a first loss was best. Our large outlet permitted us to take his entire stock left on hand—consisting of exactly eighteen hundred and forty-six garments—all of them of the very newest and most desirable style. Among them are All-wool Flannel Waists and All-wool Serge Waists, in black and complete line of popular colors—handsomely braided-trimmed, tucked and corded in the most approved styles—and also Black and Navy Blue Mohair Waists of rich, lustrous quality. The Black Mohairs are especially desirable. Lined and finished with the same painstaking care given all "Mortimer" Waists. Some have shirt waist sleeves—others the newest dress sleeves. There are no better made, or more stylish waists sold at any price. None of them were intended to retail for less than $2.25—and most are worth up to $3. Beginning tomorrow morning—and continuing until every garment is disposed of—we offer the unrestricted choice for.....
